The Constitution of Papua New Guinea

The Constitution of Papua New Guinea is both a document in legal theory -- stating the goals and basic premises of the society -- and a set of laws: the fundamental laws of the nation. It is a 'home grown' political and legal roadmap for the nation's development, underpinned by ideas of national self-respect, democracy and equality. This book contains the text of the Constitution of Papua New Guinea, annotated with the authors' comments and references to relevant reports and judgments. It is an essential reference book not only for lawyers, law students and judges but also for Members of Parliament and members of the State Services who, in the performance of their duties to the people, must be guided by the laws of the country.

NOW UPDATED TO 2004 - see Supplements" This book is much more than a casebook. It contains a wide range of materials, including excerpts from a broad range of writers and commentators. The contents of the book do provide, as the authors claim in their preface, 'the materials and commentary needed to understand the doctrines and theories behind the law'. More than that, it contains materials relevant to many questions of general interest such as the role of the courts, the appointment and removal of judges and the republican debate, to mention but a few. Indeed it is surprising how much the authors have succeeded in including in the book." Sir Anthony Mason AC KBE, former Chief Justice, High Court of Australia, reviewing a previous edition. There are many changes incorporated in this new 3rd edition, includes: All developments in the law since the last edition (for example, Egan v Willis, the Hindmarsh Island Bridge case, the Tampa case, Sue v Hill, Breckler, the cross-vesting cases and the latest case law and legislation in the migration area) New scholarly works as extracts (eg, from the new Goldsworthy book on The Sovereignty of Parliament) and listed in the further reading a new section on the Fiji crisis new material on citizenship an expanded chapter on Indigenous issues, including the latest on Mabo and native title and the work of the Council for Aboriginal Reconciliation More material reflecting the interaction between international law and the Constitution Revamped sections on the drafting and creation of the Constitution and Federation though to popular sovereignty Updated material on the Republic debate and the reconciliation process New chapters to take into account the above developments and a streamlining of existing chapters a new section on constitutionalism and revolutions

Australian and New Zealand Commentary on Halsbury's Laws of England (fourth Edition)

On the 16th of September 1985 the nation of Papua New Guinea celebrated its 10th anniversary of independence. This occasion prompted the publication of this collection of essays which focused on the operation of the Constitution of the Independent State of Papua New Guinea. A wide range of viewpoints are reflected in the essays. They will be essential reading for anyone interested in either the relationship between law and development or in the legal and political history of Papua New Guinea. Few African countries provide for an explicit right to a nationality. Laws and practices governing citizenship leave hundreds of thousands of people in Africa without a country to which they belong. Statelessness and discriminatory citizenship practices underlie and exacerbate tensions in many regions of the continent, according to this report by the Open Society Institute. Citizenship Law in Africa is a comparative study by the Open Society Justice Initiative and Africa

Governance Monitoring and Advocacy Project. It describes the often arbitrary, discriminatory, and contradictory citizenship laws that exist from state to state, and recommends ways that African countries can bring their citizenship laws in line with international legal norms. The report covers topics such as citizenship by descent, citizenship by naturalization, gender discrimination in citizenship law, dual citizenship, and the right to identity documents and passports. It describes how stateless Africans are systematically exposed to human rights abuses: they can neither vote nor stand for public office; they cannot enroll their children in school, travel freely, or own property; they cannot work for the government.--Publisher description.

"The Lice Lady: Holy and Hilarious Moments in Ministry" by Rev. Dr. Cynthia Huling Hummel is a delightful collection of short stories that will make you laugh and cry. These true stories are reflections from her work as a Presbyterian pastor in upstate NY, her work as a hospital chaplain in central NJ, her work as a Peace Corps Volunteer in Jamaica, WI and more. They are inspiring stories of hope, grace, forgiveness, and love that illustrate God's presence in our lives. A wonderful gift! Perfect for personal devotions and bible study groups. A great resource for pastors looking for sermon illustrations. Wonderful to read aloud! Unforgettable characters! "The Lice Lady " will touch your heart and soul.
