Unquiet Lives

Three tragedy and drama filled love stories in Spanish that will touch your heart.

As a Man Thinketh in His Heart So Is He

What happens when children are irrevocably caught in the crossfire of split families, social stigmas, and self-imposed emotional turmoil? How can adults begin to truly understand the daily confusion and upheaval many children experience when their parents' relationship ends, often with rancor and bitterness? Writing with great sensitivity, author and educator Barbara K. Caruso delivers an insightful new learning tool for parents and children alike. Readers of all ages will empathize with and learn from the sensitive young protagonist struggling to live in two homes, two worlds.

Pump Station Operator

Proposals for power-sharing constitutions remain controversial, as highlighted by current debates in Iraq, Afghanistan, Nepal, and Sudan. This book updates and refines the theory of consociationalism, taking account of the flood of contemporary innovations in power-sharing institutions that have occurred worldwide. The book classifies and compares four types of political institutions: the electoral system, parliamentary or presidential executives, unitary or federal states, and the structure and independence of the mass media. The study tests the potential advantages and disadvantages of each of these institutions for democratic governance. Cross-national time-series data concerning trends in democracy are analyzed for all countries worldwide since the early 1970s. Chapters are enriched by comparing detailed case studies. The mixed-method research design illuminates the underlying causal mechanisms by examining historical developments and processes of institutional change within particular nations and regions. The conclusion draws together the results and the practical lessons for policymakers.

Protection of the Skin Against Ultraviolet Radiations

Flores Olvidadas

Hello, Victor E. Huskie!

Authored by world renowned scientists, this book expertly reviews all the imaging techniques and exciting new methods for the analysis of the pain, including novel tracers, biomarker, metabolomic and gene-array profiling, together with cellular, genetic, and molecular approaches. Recent advances in human brain imaging techniques have allowed a better understand of the functional connectivity in pain pathways, as well as the functional and anatomical alterations that occur in chronic pain patients. Modern imaging techniques have permitted rapid progress in the understanding of networks in the brain related to pain processing and those related to different types of pain modulation. Neuroimaging of Pain is designed to be a valuable resource for radiologists, neuroradiologists, neurologists and neuroscientists, working in hospitals and universities from junior trainees to consultants.

Double Eagles

Safety Considerations in the Disposal of Disused Sealed Radioactive Sources in Borehole Facilities

Entrusted with a cargo of 2,000 Henry rifles--weapons that can turn the tide for the Union--and $15 million in newly-minted gold eagles, Captain Thomas Gunnison must lead a caravan across the Mexican desert after his ship is attacked and deliver the money to Vera Cruz. His caravan could change the course of history--if bloodthirsty Mexican guerillas and Confederate soldiers don't stop him first. Original.

Two Homes, Two Worlds

Are ultraviolet rays dangerous? This is the question addressed by the leading dermatological experts who compare their wide clinical experience in this book. It has now been established that ultraviolet rays provoke erythema and can cause considerable damage to blood vessels. But what is their precise impact on the occurrence of premature ageing and cancer of the skin, and other serious consequences? The specialists contributing to this work report on their observations and give objective and reasoned opinions on this question. Their explanations are rounded out by many colour illustrations and diagrams.

The Creative Curriculum

Neuroimaging of Pain

Based on vivid court records and newspaper advertisements, this 2003 book is a pioneering account of the expectations and experiences of married life among the middle and labouring ranks in the long eighteenth century. Its original methodology draws attention to the material life of marriage, which has long been dominated by theories of emotional shifts or fashionable accounts of spouses' gendered, oppositional lives. Thus it challenges preconceptions about authority in the household, by showing the extent to which husbands depended upon their wives' vital economic activities: household management and child care. Not only did this forge co-dependency between spouses, it undermined men's autonomy. The power balance within marriage is further revised by evidence that the sexual double standard was not rigidly applied in everyday life. The book also shows that ideas about adultery and domestic violence evolved in the eighteenth century, influenced by new models of masculinity and femininity.
