The New Guide for Occupational Exploration gives you a feel for specific careers and whether they match your interests. It begins by asking you to identify your interest level in 16 Interest Areas. You then examine Work Groups of jobs within the cluster to identify types of careers that interest you most. Finally, specific jobs are listed within those Work Groups. The process is simple, and after you narrow down your options, you are provided with loads of information for each Work Group to help you decide which jobs to explore in more detail. Book jacket.

Little information is available on the labour force in the forest management services industry, with the exception of two 1987 studies from B.C. This report augments this information with data gathered in eastern Ontario in a joint 1989 study by Forestry Canada and the Ontario Ministry of Natural Resources. Silviculture workers were surveyed in forest renewal, site preparation, stand tending, and nursery activities areas. The survey covered personal, social, economic and occupational areas, and was conducted through interviews with the workers.

Early Childhood Education: A Training Manual is a companion volume to Enhancing the Skills of Early Childhood Trainers (also available as Low Cost Edition at UNESCO Publishing). Both books aim at giving trainers an experience of what active learning should be. They advocate a learner-centred approach and the creation of an environment through which new knowledge and competencies can be acquired and applied to concrete situations. The Manual emerged from the actual experience and activities developed during the Early Childhood Joint Training Initiative, launched by the Bernard van Leer Foundation, UNICEF, UNESCO and Save the Children(USA) in Africa during three years. Practical and easy to follow, encouraging personal and cultural interpretations, the Manual is of interest to early childhood trainers worldwide and to trainers of primary school teachers.

Establishing a Training Program for Child Care Workers

This guide contains all the basic information needed to set up and successfully run nurseries relying on manual work. It focuses on the production of containerised seedlings as the method most commonly used in the ILO's Special Public Works Programme (SPWP) and other non-industrial tree planting in developing countries. This booklet should be considered a starting point upon which the nursery workers' and managers' experience can and must be built, through careful observation. The best guide to nurseries is the experience of the people running them.

This book examines why workplaces around the world have become involved in childcare and the nature of the programs that have been implemented. It provides an overview of diverse workplace initiatives beyond traditional preschool care. Partnership is a key theme, and the authors highlight the fruitfulness of collaborations that combine the resources and capabilities of different actors. Ten industrialized and developing countries are examined through a national overview on policies and facilities for childcare and the implications for working parents, followed by case studies of specific workplaces. The studies provide considerable detail on why the childcare support was started, how it is funded and managed, how various partners are involved, and the perspectives of workers and employers on the support provided. The book shows how support for childcare has been organized and funded in a variety of workplaces and the diversity of the partnerships that have evolved in both developing and industrialized countries. It will be a useful resource for policymakers and workplace partners looking for practical ways to help working parents with their childcare needs.

This Child-Friendly Schools (CFS) Manual was developed during three-and-a-half years of continuous work, involving the United Nations Children's Fund education staff and specialists from partner agencies working on quality education. It benefits from fieldwork in 155 countries and territories, evaluations carried out by the Regional Offices and desk reviews conducted by headquarters in New York. The manual is a part of a total resource package that includes an e-learning package for capacity-building in the use of CFS models and a collection of field case studies to illustrate the state of the art in child-friendly schools in a variety of settings.
